Right now, don't think about what kind of voice is this or what debt will be and what credit will be. Currently at this phase of an accounting item, it is necessary to identify only the accounting registers that will be used. This is everything. Once you have learned to identify the accounting registers in a voice, you will see, it will be very much easier for you actually pass an accounting item in the heel. The example above was very simple and you have to practice with at least 500 such transactions to get to a level where you will not have to think about the accounting registers. You automatically come to your mind as it comes to mind. E is A a e a e please go to this post in which I explained in detail how to create registers in the count. Now, let's go on to the second step when you have to think about debt and credit. Passage is a ~ a e o2. What will be debt and what credit will take here, the entry of accounting transactions here and they will see what they will be debt and what credit will be in the count. It is actually very simple. At this moment, it only remembers this: whatever you arrive in your activity will be debt. Whatever comes out of your business will be credit. So, in the transaction above, you deposited is a e a e 1,000 in your bank account. Therefore, money in the form of cash arrives on the bank account. Then, the bank account is charged here. Likewise, the money comes out of your activity in the form of cash to the bank account. Therefore, the cash account will be credited. Remember this rule of golden accounting - charge that it comes and credit that comes out. So the accounting item will be: bank account Dr a e mmit a1.000 to Cash Call a e a e a e $1.000 in accounting, often we write at the beginning of the book Mastro who will be credited. This is only another way of writing accounting items and nothing else. Look at the image in the heel below for the same voice. Identify debt and credit in the heel, let's go ahead The third step is really fun because you don't have to do anything here. Passage is a ~ 3 - By checking the accounting items in the heel the best thing about the count it is that once you did the accounting items, you don't have to create anything else. Tally does it automatically for you. Once completed and Saved the entry of accounting into the heel, any other effect takes place in every accounting relationship and necessary books. So, now you can go to the balance in Tally and see the increase in the bank balance of a e a e a e Saate1.000 and one Reduction of the balance in cash of a e a e a e 1,000. In the same way, you can also go to the daytime book by Tally and you will find this transaction today. In other words, the accounting is carried out automatically. You just have to account for the accounting In Tally and the rest of which he dealt with Tally. Now, let's move on to the next part concerning the basic accounting items in the heel for beginners, including GST and with examples. Count items - Basic accounting items in the counting including gst - 7 examples this can also be and SSre called as an accounting tutorial for beginners. We will examine the basic accounting items in the counting with which you can start learning the count and keep the accounting in the count. At the end of these basic accounting items, you will be easily able to contact the count with GST. The basic accounting items are: the opposite item in the payment item of the counting in the item of receipt of counting in the item of the Tally newspaper in an item of sale of taling in talk with the GST purchase item in the heel with the closing items Of the end of the GST year in Tally, let's start with Entry in Tally Control in Tally we have already seen one of the opposite voices in the heel above, when we deposited is a e mmit a e mmit on the bank account. The item contrasts will be used in 3 circumstances: transfer of money from cash to the bank account - already seen in the example above. Transfer of money from the cash bank account, such as cash cash withdrawal transfer one bank account to another bank account i.e. inter-bank transfer Now, we will see transfer of money from bank account to cash i.e. cash withdrawal entry in tally. Tally Accounting Entry eAAA Example 1 You have withdrawn eAA'A5,000 from your bank account. For this, we will use contra voucher in tally. You can go to contra voucher in tally by going into accounting vouchers from gateway of tally and then selecting contra from the right hand side options. The accounting entry for the above transaction will be as under in tally: Contra Entry in Tally ERP 9 Cash Account Dr eAA'A5,000 To Bank Account eAA'A5,000 Now, we are going to look at the second point which is a payment entry in tally. Payment Entry in Tally Whenever you make a payment to someone, it will be done in payment voucher in tally. Tally Accounting Entry eAAA Example 2 LeteAAAs take an example. You made a payment of eAA'A2,000 in cash to Radhika because you have purchased goods from her. You can select payment voucher which is exactly under the option of contra voucher in tally. Or you can just press F5 while in accounting vouchers which is the shortcut for payment voucher in tally. Payment entry for the above transaction will be as under: Radhika Account Dr eAA'A2,000 To Cash Account eAA'A2,000 Payment Voucher in Tally ERP 9 Now, let us move forward and we will look at the third point which is the receipt entry in tally. Receipt Entry in Tally In the above transaction, you made a payment to someone. In the same way, whenever you receive money from someone, we have to use receipt voucher in tally for that. Tally Accounting Entry eAAA Example 3 LeteAAAs say for example, you received eAA'A3,500 from Priya in bank account because you sold some goods to her. You can go to the receipt voucher in tally easily because it is just under the payment voucher option in tally. Receipt entry in tally for the above transaction will be as under: Bank Account Dr eAA'A3,500 To PriyaeAAAs Account Receipt Voucher in Tally ERP 9 This is how simple it is to pass a receipt entry in tally. Before we move on to journal entry in tally, I want you to understand a basic understanding behind tally accounting because it is very much important. Basic understanding behind accounting in tally is that for every kind of transaction, there is a different kind of voucher. Please remember this. Now, we will move forward to the fourth point which is about journal entry in tally. Journal Entry in Tally In general, Journal entry is used when there is no cash or bank account involved. However, you can still pass a journal entry with cash and bank account in a journal voucher in tally. That is a unique feature of a journal voucher in tally. The option of journal voucher in tally is located exactly under the option of receipt voucher in tally. Tally Accounting Entry eAAA Example 4 LeteAAAs take an example of depreciation which is a commonly used accounting entry for any business. You have a computer in your business which is of eAA'A20,000 and this year, the depreciation will be 60% which comes to be eAA'A12,000. We will pass a journal entry in tally for the above transaction in tally. Accounting entry will be as follows: Depreciation Account Dr. eAA'A12,000 To Computer Account eAA'A12,000 In tally, it will look like in the image below. Journal Voucher in Tally ERP 9 We can also pass the contra entry in the first point of this post in the journal voucher in tally. Right now, try it in your computer. Now, we will move on to our next point which is sales entry in tally with GST. Sales Entry in Tally with GST Whenever you sell something, you can use either a journal voucher or a sales voucher in tally. I always recommend sales voucher because it is much easier to record a sales entry in a sales voucher in tally than a journal voucher. In Tally, you can find the option of sales voucher just below the option of journal voucher.
